

June 29, 2000
For Immediate release

CONTACT:
Chug Roberts
Publisher
TheCapitol.Net
Phone: (202) 678-1600
Fax: (202) 466-5370
Web Site: www.CongressionalDeskbook.com

Ultimate Congressional Guide, Resource Deskbook Released By TheCapitol.Net

(June 29, 2000 - Alexandria, VA) - TheCapitol.Net today released the most comprehensive, one-volume guide ever produced about the U.S. Congress, providing government professionals, journalists and citizens both a complete resource for understanding the inner-workings of our legislative branch and an up-to-date almanac of the current Congress. The Congressional Deskbook 2000 is available at www.CongressionalDeskbook.com.

"The Congressional Deskbook 2000 is full of information that no one else has ever compiled in one volume," says Chug Roberts, Publisher of TheCapitol.Net. "This book is a must-buy for political reporters, government professionals and any citizen who wants to know how their government works."

Phyllis Hughes, Immediate Past President of Women in Government Relations and Legislative Specialist at Freedman, Levy, Kroll & Simonds says, "The Deskbook is a masterfully-produced source of information. It helps me answer the many parliamentary questions my colleagues ask of me daily, and it helps my firm and clients in the matter of lobbying."

The Congressional Deskbook 2000 covers all the bases, including legislative, budget, and special procedures and procedural strategies; the forms and impact of political competition on Capitol Hill; overviews of the election, lobbying, and ethics laws and rules that regulate congressional behavior; congressional relations with the president, executive branch, federal courts, and states; the work of membership, leadership and administrative offices; the variety of congressional documents; and how to conduct research on Congress.

The 620-page volume, which will be updated annually, includes everything from sample congressional documents with explanatory notations to Capitol maps and phone numbers.

Two Congressional experts - Michael L. Koempel and Judy Schneider – wrote the Congressional Deskbook 2000. Koempel is a Senior Specialist in American National Government and Schneider is a Specialist on Congress with the Congressional Research Service (CRS) in the Library of Congress.

ABOUT THE COMPANY:

TheCapitol.Net is a privately-held, non-partisan, women-owned small business based in Alexandria, VA. TheCapitol.Net offers training and information for government and business leaders about representative democracy, administrative agencies, free markets and the rule of law. TheCapitol.Net is the exclusive provider of Congressional Quarterly Executive Conferences.

- END -